

About MDSi

As the leading supplier of voice and data communication equipment, MDSi offers new and certified pre-owned equipment, as well as a complete suite of professional services.

Since 1990, MDSi has been the leading supplier of voice and data communication products and services focused on redeploying technologies and reducing capital expenditures.

The company specializes in switch, transport, wireless and network equipment product lines from a reverse logistics and resale perspective, which helps ensure network service providers increase efficiencies and improve logistics processes by redeploying technologies and reducing capital expenditure.

MDSi combines its expertise in the forward and reverse logistics planning industries to reduce overall CAPEX. This expertise begins with inventory management services, which includes key components such as re-use programs, spares management support, repair, stage/configuration and consignment services.

The organization is renowned for its quality, responsiveness and fully integrated end-to-end supply chain product suite, as well as the latest in inventory management systems, which compliment the most important ingredient - MDSi cares about the success of its clients.

With a Fortune 500 client roster and significant domestic and international implementations and capabilities that extend far beyond forward and reverse logistics services – MDSi is the only source for end-to-end service logistics results.
